LeanPath Announces New Clients in Healthcare, University and Business Dining Services

Portland, Ore. – LeanPath, Inc. announced today six new clients who have begun tracking food waste using LeanPath automated systems in late Q4 2009 and Q1 2010. The clients represent LeanPath's growth in the leading non-commercial foodservice markets of healthcare, college & university and business dining services.

New clients include: Iowa Health Methodist West Hospital, Des Moines, IA, Lawrence & Memorial Hospital, New London, CT, Morgan Stanley, New York, NY and Westchester, NY, Veterans Administration Medical Center, Martinsburg, WV, and Virginia Commonwealth University, Richmond, VA.

“These new clients represent the continued trend in connecting the dots between food waste tracking and improving a foodservice operation's bottom line,” says Andrew Shakman, LeanPath CEO. “We are excited to work with these clients and become a daily part of their operating best practices.”

About LeanPath, Inc.

LeanPath, Inc. (www.leanpath.com) is a technology company providing food waste tracking systems to the foodservice industry. The company's core offering, the ValuWaste® system, is a proprietary, comprehensive waste tracking technology package that helps foodservice operators reduce food waste, save food dollars and operate more sustainable facilities. ValuWaste includes data collection terminals, which are used to track pre-consumer food waste, a software application, which provides a detailed portrait of the waste stream, and training and coaching that enable chefs and front-line teams to proactively reduce waste. LeanPath partners with leading foodservice organizations at sites in more than 22 U.S. states with customers including ARAMARK, Sodexo, Compass Group and MGM Mirage. LeanPath publishes the Food Waste Flyer, an online newsletter tracking food waste trends, and also produces the Food Waste Focus blog (blog.leanpath.com), an educational site following issues related to foodservice waste management.
